

OUR AUTHORS

Frog, PhD Candidate, is affiliated with the Department of Scandinavian Studies Research Fellow, University College London and Department of Folklore Studies, University of Helsinki. He is member of Folklore Fellows, Finnish Literature Society, Viking Society for Northern Research, Medieval Academy of America, Glossa Society for Medieval Studies, and Retrospective Methods Network. His most recent works include the PhD dissertation 'Baldr and Lemminkäinen: Approaching the Evolution of Mythological Narrative through the Activating Power of Expression. A Case Study in Germanic and Finno-Karelian Cultural Contact and Exchange' (defended on 20 November 2009), also articles 'Speech-Acts in Skaldic Verse: Genre, Formula and Improvisation' (2009) and 'Alliteration in (Balto-) Finnic Languages' (2009).

misterfrogfrog@yahoo.de

*

Brigitte Frizzoni, DR. PHIL., is lecturer at the Department of Popular Culture at the University of Zurich. She obtained her MA in German language and literature, European folk literature, and Film Studies. She has written on popular literature, media and their reception, and recently published a book-length study of gender issues in female crime fiction, Verhandlungen mit Mordsfrauen. Geschlechterpositionierungen im "Frauenkrimi" (Zurich: Chronos Verlag, 2009).

brigitte.frizzoni@ipk.uzh.ch

*

Anders Gustavsson is affiliated with the University of Oslo, Norway. His current research involves cultural contacts in coastal regions, tourism, folk religion, the ritual year, life cycle, death and burial customs for people and for pets, symbols on grave stones, death on the internet, and farmers' everyday life in the 19th century.

anders.gustavsson@ikos.uio.no

*

Arvo Krikmann, PhD, is senior researcher at the Department of Folkloristics, Estonian Literary Museum. His research interests include the origin, historiography and textology of Estonian and Baltic-Finnic minor forms of folklore, including the study of earlier sources of Estonian phraseology and folk rhetoric; the structural planes and interrelations of minor forms of folklore (syntax, logic, modalities, figurative semantics, paremiological categorisations); theory of metaphor and other types of figurative speech; the geographical dissemination of folklore and dialectal lexica, and other attempts to apply quantitative methods in folkloristics and dialectology; currently humour theory, contemporary political and ethnic jokes. Arvo Krikmann has participated in the compilation and editing of academic editions Estonian Proverbs, Vols. 1–5 (1980–1988) and Estonian Riddles (Vol. 1 in 2001; Vol. 2 in 2002), and was a member of the research team under the lead of Matti Kuusi responsible for compiling Proverbia Septentrionalia (1985: FFC 236), the comparative edition of Balto-Finnic favourite proverbs.

kriku@folklore.ee

*

Kristin Kuutma, PHD, Professor of Cultural Research, Institute of Cultural Research and Fine Arts, University of Tartu in Estonia. Her research interests include the history of ethnographic studies; cultural theory; cultural heritage in the context of representation, modern communication systems, and the making of cultural policy. Among her publications are a monograph Interpreting the Creation of a Sámi Ethnography and a Seto Epic (Helsinki 2006), a co-edited collection Studies in Estonian Folkloristics and Ethnology: A Reader and Reflexive History (Tartu University Press 2005), articles in the journals Scandinavian Studies, Oral Tradition, Temenos, Trames, Ethnologia Europea, Folklore: Electronic Journal of Folklore. She is a board member of SIEF (Société Internationale d'Ethnologie et de Folklore), a fellow of Kalevalaseura, a member of American Folklore Society, ISFNR, Association for the Advancement of Baltic Studies, a. o. She represents Estonia at the UNESCO Intergovernmental Committee for the Safeguarding of Intangible Cultural Heritage, and also in the Standing Committee for Humanities of the European Science Foundation.

kristin.kuutma@ut.ee

*

Madis Arukask, PHD, is affiliated with the Department of Estonian and Finno-Ugric Linguistics and the Viljandi Culture Academy, University of Tartu. His research interests include Estonian folk religion and the history of construction of Estonian identity, the folk religion and contemporary processes of small Baltic-Finnic ethnic groups (Votes, Veps, Setu), the genre issues of the world view of Estonian and Kalevala-metric Setu folk songs.

madis.arukask@ut.ee